

The Original...and Still the Best

 CRESCENT

The Crescent® Brand Adjustable Wrench

After completing his historic solo transatlantic flight, Charles Lindbergh was quoted as saying he carried only “gasoline, sandwiches, a bottle of water, and a Crescent wrench and pliers.” The Crescent® brand adjustable wrench was already widely recognized as an essential part of every toolbox. The year was 1927, just 20 years since the Crescent adjustable wrench had been introduced.

Today, Crescent brand adjustable wrenches are just as essential as they were back then. They are now part of a full line of quality hand tools that proudly wears the Crescent brand name. And as always, there is only one original Crescent brand. If it doesn't say “Crescent” on the handle, it's not a genuine Crescent brand adjustable wrench.

The Crescent Advantage:

Special alloy steel is heat treated for strength. Matte finishing provides exceptional resistance to corrosion.

The Crescent Advantage:

Handle is up to 71% wider than conventional wrenches...lets users comfortably apply more force.

The Crescent Advantage:

Jaws open up to 25% wider than conventional wrenches to fit more fasteners.

A wide selection to suit a variety of needs

With over 50 different sizes and types to choose from, there is a Crescent brand adjustable wrench for nearly every application.

Small sized wrenches, designed for close-in work on small fasteners, and well as large sizes suited for millwright work, are available in black phosphate or chrome finishes.

Selected models come with extra comfort cushion grip handles. Adjustable construction wrenches with tapered tangs designed to align mating parts are also available.
